Policy objective

- 1.1 To provide a structured, consistent and transparent approach to barking dog complaints and offensive noise complaints from other species received by Council.

Policy statement

- 2.1 Council recognises that animal noise may be a source of significant stress to some members of the community. Council is committed to facilitating lasting resolutions between individuals where animal noise is having a detrimental impact on community relationships.
- 2.2 Council's intent is that individuals with a animal noise grievance will take reasonable steps to resolve issues directly with the source of conflict before resorting to Council-led intervention.
- 2.3 Council encourages private parties for a barking dog complaint to endeavour and follow up all available options such as but not limited to alternative dispute resolution (ADR) and mediation via Community Justice Centres to find a resolution to the matter.

Coverage of the policy

- 3.1 This policy applies to all Council staff that are authorised within the meaning of the Companion Animals Act 1998 and the Protection of the Environment

Operations Act 1997. The implementation of this policy is primarily the responsibility of Council Rangers.

Policy content

- 4.1 Dogs are a common and desirable part of the community and everyday life. It is accepted that barking dogs may be heard from time to time. A common reason many become dog owners is the security and comfort dogs provide including through advance warning of visitors. However, dogs which bark persistently may be classified as a nuisance if the barking has a detrimental impact on those outside the dog's home address.
- 4.2 Unsurprisingly, many complaints of barking dogs come from direct neighbours. In the first instance, complainants are to be directed to discuss their concerns with the owner of the barking dog. This is usually the best way to achieve a lasting and amicable solution. It also provides an opportunity to discuss measures for noise abatement and for the complainant to reinforce their concerns with relevant information, such as medical conditions, which may impact on their sensitivity to the noise.
- 4.3 Where a barking dog impacts on more than one other premises, the issue is considered to be a community issue where it may be appropriate for Council to intervene. In the first instance, Council should recommend that the parties seek resolution through direct communication and/or ADR.
- 4.4 Barking dog diaries document the noise complaint and provide substantive evidence of the timing, duration and frequency of the barking. All parties, including the owner of the barking dog, should be directed to complete barking dog diaries for a minimum of two weeks. Complainants may also wish to reinforce their diary with audio and/or visual evidence.
- 4.5 Barking is a common noise in the community. Therefore, through discussion with all parties and review of any evidence, an assessment is to be reached as to whether the barking is to be classified as an unreasonable interference in the lives of the complainants.
- 4.6 In circumstances where the barking is considered to be unreasonable, a Ranger may proceed with actions in accordance with the Companion Animals Act 1998, to deal with the barking dog as a nuisance. Where multiple dogs are barking and it is not possible to identify a specific dog, it may be more relevant to proceed with a Noise Abatement Direction in accordance with the Protection of the Environment Operations Act 1997 or specific orders under the Local Government Act 1993.
